The discovery of three puppies found wandering around in the cold along a ditch in rural Iowa touched the hearts of many over the weekend. There is good news. Hooves & Paws Rescue in Glenwood, Iowa has found someone willing to adopt the three. In the meantime, a live trap has been set in an attempt to reunite the puppies with their mother.

So far, the puppies are doing well. They were hungry after a man found volunteers to round them up. Hooves & Paws Rescue of Glenwood, Iowa tells Channel 6 News that the puppies need to be socialized before they are adopted by an unnamed family. They also need another round of shots.
